

COMMUNION

Have you ever had a casual friendship with someone; a type of relationship that would best be described as cordial but never got below the surface and yet you desired for that relationship to take on more significance? And as you made efforts to take that friendship into a more meaningful level the other person's response was that they weren't interested in taking it to a deeper level. How did that make you feel?

Now imagine God's response when He wants your relationship to be meaningful, vibrant, intimate and you only want to be cordial. As we stand here today, before the Lord's Table - I think it is most proper for us to consider once again our relationship with Him.
